January 2020

Idle Free Week, February 2 - 8

To help raise awareness of the adverse effects of idling vehicles, Ogden City Council and Mayor Mike Caldwell will adopt a joint proclamation to declare February 2-8 as "Idle-Free Week" in Ogden City.

While Ogden's geography makes it feel impossible to escape inversion, everyone has control over the largest contributor to poor air quality in Utah – vehicle exhaust. Like many initiatives, the Council and Administration will not be alone in their efforts to reduce idling and raise awareness in the City. Ogden School District, Weber-Morgan Health Department and Weber State University will also help residents learn more about the importance of being idle-free, and provide other ways to keep the air clean through additional events and campaigns. Follow Ogden City Council online and on Facebook for Idle Free Week information.

Yeti Bash, February 7

This event coincides with the First Friday Art Stroll, featuring an art market inside the Ogden Union Station. Outside on the plaza, attendees can enjoy a variety of family-friendly activities, yeti yoga, live music, food trucks and s'mores. The third annual Yeti Beard Competition will once again feature more than 100 competitors, with additional categories for women and children. ## 2020 Holiday Trash Collection Schedule

Ogden City sees changes to City department hours and garbage collection schedules during various government holidays. The following schedule for the 2020 year will help residents stay up to date on which holidays to anticipate those delays. Green and blue trash cans should be brought onto the street curb by 6:00 a.m. on collection day. The lids must be able to close completely, and cans should be spaced 5 ft from any obstructions (vehicle, tree, mailbox, etc.). Ogden City does not provide curbside pick-up for items left outside of the cans and there should be no plastic bags inside the blue recycling cans. Holiday schedules and more information on City garbage collection can be found online or by calling the Ogden City Public Service Operations (801-629-8271).

Emergency Preparedness: Make a Plan

Be prepared for 2020 by creating multiple plans for your household to follow in various emergency scenarios. The best way to begin developing an emergency plan is to form the following thoughts and habits.

- Write it and memorize it. Keep an accessible version of each action plan and make sure they are talked about and practiced, so it's easier to execute in a true emergency.
- Ask the question, "What would we do if..." Each plan should cover likely risks, but also possible contingencies that will be unique to the household. No concern or detail is too small to address.
- Consider the location. Be aware of how the emergency will apply to existing school, workplace and neighborhood plans. Identify desirable resources and possible options that already may be available in the area.

To start planning your own emergency preparedness program, visit the Be Ready Utah webpage.
